You didn't find what you wanted, but you found something else:

The screenshot shows a product detail page for 'Chai'. At the top, it says 'Product Information' and displays the product name 'Chai' with a price of '$18.00'. Below this is a description: '10 boxes x 20 bags'. A 'Product Image' shows a cup of chai latte with intricate latte art. Below the image are three buttons: 'Add to Cart', 'Continue Shopping', and 'Leave a Review!'. Underneath the product details, there's a section titled 'Inventory Details' showing a table with one row: Warehouse ID 1 and Quantity 5. Finally, there's a 'Customer Reviews' section with a single entry: Rating: 3/5, Date: 2024-12-07 01:26:52.147, and Comment: !.

You either 1:
Add it to cart and checkout:

The first screenshot shows the 'Your Shopping Cart' page with a single item: Product Id 1, Product Name Chai, Quantity 1, Price $18.00, Subtotal $18.00, and Action 'Remove'. Below the table are 'Check Out' and 'Continue Shopping' buttons. The second screenshot shows a login form with fields for 'Email' and 'Password', and buttons for 'Submit' and 'Reset'.

Or 2:
You just wanted to leave a review since you already purchased this product:

The left screenshot shows a review form with a title 'Share Your Thoughts!', a note about rating the product, a rating scale from 1 to 5, and a text area for 'Tell us about your experience...'. The right screenshot shows the 'Product Information' page for Chai, identical to the one in the first screenshot, including the product image, inventory details, and customer reviews.

But let's go back to the homepage. Let's say you weren't looking to purchase a product, you just wanted to check your previous orders:
